READINGS IN AMERICAN POETRY: By RUFUS W. GRIS-WOLD. New-York, John C. Riker, Ann-street.

This work is intended to supply a grievous want in the schools of our country. Nearly all the class books now in use, especially those consisting of Poetry, are made up almost entirely of the productions of English genius. Very few American poems can be found in their pages, and we believe there is no work prepared for the use of schools exclusively from our native writers. It is most evident that this should not be so; and the elegant volume of selections prepared by Mr. GRISWOLD will be of essential service in supplying the deficiency. The selections are made with taste and care, and although many of the best productions of American authors are excluded on account of their length, which would render them unsuitable for school books, the extracts presented are choice and beautiful. All the prominent American poets have contributed to the pages of the work, which is by far the best of its kind we have ever seen. It will receive, we are sure, a cordial reception from the public.

THE LADIES' COMPANION: April, 1843. W. W. Snowden.

This number closes the eighteenth volume of the Companion, and the Publishers state that the next will be issued upon new type and in an otherwise improved style. Mrs. Sigourney and Mrs. Embury have been engaged as regular contributors, and the present number contains articles from Prof. Ingraham, W. E. Burton, Seba Smith, A. D. Paterson, and other writers very generally known as writers for the Monthly Magazines. The embellishments, 'Leonora,' and 'Byron contemplating the Coliseum,' are very fine.

NEW WORK .- In a notice of the proceedings of the Historical Society at one of its recent meetings, the American thus speaks of a work soon to be published by the Librarian of the Society:

"Mr. Folsom read some interesting extracts from a work he is about to publish on the Conquest of Mexico, consisting of translations from the original narration of Cortes, the conqueror, contained in letters or despatches addressed by him to Charles V., and written while engaged in his extraordinary enterprise against the Mexican Empire. These letters are printed in Spanish and Italian, but not in English; and Mr. F. exhibited a teautiful copy of the Italian translation of one of the letters, printed at Venice in 1524, which was obtained in Italy by Samuel Ward, Esq., and by him presented to the Society. The passages read by Mr. Folsom from his English version related to the markets of the city of Mexico, its aqueducts, the efforts of Cortes to reform the religion of the people by destroying their idols and prohibiting the sacrifice of human beings, and to the general character of the people, who are described by Cortes as quite equal to those of Spain in point of manners and general civilization, without reference to their religion. The publication of this work cannot fail to excite great interest in the reading community."

For The Tribune.

Gen. Putnam. In Saturday's Tribune I noticed an article, taken from the Hampshire Gazette, signed by John H. Winthrop, on the long mooted question in respect to the conduct of Gen. Putnam at the Battle of Bunker Hill. Mr. W. is doubtless a man of veracity, and relates what he believes to be true .-He says: "I arrived on the ground just in time to see the retreat. I saw Gen. Putnam in the rear of his men, giving command. I saw him form his men into columns." Now, it is admitted by those who contend that Gen. P. took no part in the action, that he made considerable bustle in the retreat to no manner of use. That he "formed his men into columns," is doubtful, as it appears the retreat was precipitate, and that no stand was made after its commencement. The cause of the contradictory statements in this matter evidently arises from Gen. Putnam's kaving been seen in the redoubt and likewise at the rail-fence just before the action began; and it might naturally be supposed by many of the Soldiers, who were too much occupied to take particular notice, that he remained at one of those places during the engagement. But surely Col. Prescott, who commanded in the redoubt, and Col. Stark, whose regiment occupied the rail-fence, knew whether or not Gen. P. was at either of those stations in the time of action; and we have seen what they say on the

For a due estimate of the evidence given by the persons referred to by Mr. Winthrop, it would be necessary to cross-examine them. A Believer In the Testimony of Col. Prescott, Gen'ls. Dearborn and Stark, Judge Parker, 40.

SINBAD OUTDONE .- A letter received here from the Pacific, contains an account of the following adventurous and almost miraculous preservation of a boat's crew of the ship Russel, of Dartmouth, in June last: When within a few days' sail of Tecamas, the boats of the ship were lowered for whales, and one of them harpooned and fastened to a young monster, who, probably not being overpleased with the salutation, immediately made off at the top of his speed. The boat's crew, however, were not disposed to relinquish their only prize, and accordingly held fast the line attached to the harpoon, and their frail bark was thus conveyed with immense velocity through the deep to the distance of several leagues, when by a whisk of their submarine steed, their bark was overturned and partially shattered. One of their number was drowned, and the five survivors were thrown absolutely on their own resources, out of sight of the ship. A scanty stock of provisions type. Price 12½ cents. remained to them, and in their perilous situation they clung to the keel of the boat during three days and nights, all of which time the wind blew a gale. On the fourth day, the wind having abated, they succeeded in righting the boat, and bailing out the water, made for land, and arrived at Tecamas. Meantime the ship had unsuccessfully cruised for several days in search of the boat and crew, when they put away for Tecamas, which they reached a few days after the boat's crew. Almost incredible as is the story, it appears well authenti-[New-Bedford Mercury.

MRS. Wood.-An incorrect report has been given in the English papers as regards the lines addressed by the orphans to Mrs. Wood. The lines came from the Catholic Orphan Asylum in this city, and were written by one of the orphans, who presented them, with a purse made by the orphans for Mrs. Wood, as a small token of gratitude for her very valuable services. For The Tribune. Convict Labor in the Iron Mines.

After all the allowance for want of skill in the convicts, which the most extravagant can claim, even so far as to put all their wages as low as eighty cents per day, (the price there paid to common laborers,) the State would then realare in this business more than twice the amount now re ceived for their labor, although iron should bring in market we more than its present cost.

The cost of a ton of bar iron at these works is thus esti-Two and a halftons separated ore, at $5 per ton. . $12 50

ket at from $70 to $80 per ton.

We have then this result. That after paying the wages above mentioned, and transportation, the manufacturers at present receive a profit of about seventy per cent." Now, Mr. Editor, it is utter folly for any sane man to state, that the iron above described is now worth in the market but $40, and will soon be worth but $30. But, admitting that I am in error, for the sake of argument, I contend that even at the latter price the State can realize a handsome profit in the business.

OF MICHAEL HARE, a Soldier of the Revolution, and the oldest man on the Pension Roll, died at Union township, Brie County, on the 4th ult., at the very advanced age of 116 years. He was honest, brave, and patriotic. [Tribune. Early on Christmas morning, 1819, a man, about five feet six in hight, glided noiselessly into a barroom in North-Western Pennsylvania, and, with assured but modest effort, sought to share the blessings of a rousing fire which crackled within a dense semi-circle of sturdy Pennsylvania teamsters. His progress in securing a position in th circle was slow, and might have been unavailing but for the fact that he jostled a tall, raw-boned fellow, who looked down on the comparatively diminutive being at his side with a sort of chuckling laugh, which seemed to say--" Work away. my little man, it will be long before you move Jim Benson from his tracks, unless he wills to favor you." But this evidence of exultation was evanescent indeed; for, scarcely had the giant's gaze fairly rested on the object of his scrutiny than a blush of the deepest crimson mantled his cheeks, and he exclaimed -" Boys, give way for Father Hare!" The name operated like magic. Not a man but gave way, leaving 'Father Hare' the whole front of the fire. Then followed greetings from every one, nor was there a man in that collection of hard exteriors who did not evince deep interest in the comfort and convenience of ' Father Hare.' This unobtrusive and agile man, on whom every body looked with pride, and for whom all had a friendly greeting, was MICHAEL HARE, whose demise is announced above. When we learned the age of this veteran, then said to be 93, we could not but be surprised at the vivacity of his movements; ner did a fifteen years' acquaintance show any diminution thereof. At the time we first saw him, and onward till he was 104 years old, he thought nothing of a pedestrian excursion of 40 or 50 miles, which he would accomplish much sooner than many hale men of not half his years. The prime of his life was spent on the frontier-not only in the capacity of a soldier, but also of a citizen pioneer. He was a man of great cheerfulness-of remarkable equanimity of temper-fertile in expedients when surrounded by danger, but of undaunted courage when danger must be met face to face. Few men in mode n times have numbered as many years as Michael Hare: yet, long as he tarried, he had the satisfaction of knowing that he had not out-lived the regard of those who knew him best. He was among the few permitted to come down to us from an ancient period, having lived through one-third of the time from the discovery of the American Continent to the present. Buthe has gone to the unseen world; and we doubt not, were the speculations of some religionists true, but his entrance into the land of shadows would cause a general exclamation of-

Radical of the 11th inst. says: By a letter, which we received from Palmyra on resterday, we learn that the main building of the Abolition institution, near Quincy, Illinois, was burned down during the night of the 8th inst. The same letter adds that a company of armed men from Hannibal and Palmyra started for Quincy on the same night, with the avowed intention of destroying the building above alluded to, but finding that Providence had forestalled them, they returned peaceably to their homes.

[From the Friends of Association.] Association, or, a Concise Exposition of the Practi-Cal Part of Fourier's Social Science. By Albert BRISHANE Octavo, 36 pages, double columns. Greeley & McElrath, 160 Nassau-st., and S. C. Redfield, Clin-We are happy to inform our friends and the public generally, that a l'amphlet of the above title is now in press and will be published in the course of the present week. It is, as its title purports, a condensed statement of the practical part of the doctrine of Association; it has been prepared with the greatest care in order to adapt it to all classes of readers, and to present the subject in its practical bearings in the simplest and clearest manner possible. The want of a succinct explanation of the System of Association has, for some time past, been very generally felt, but to supply this want has not been a very easy task. The doctrine of Association is so vast and comprehensive in its character, embracing as it does every sphere of thought and action, solving every problem relating to Man and Society, and is so new and profound, that it is extremely difficult to treat it in a manner at once familiar as regards particulars in Practice, and philosophically, as regards universals in Principle. We have endeavored to overcome these difficulties as far as in our power, and to present such a view of the subject as will convey a general and satisfactory idea of the doctrine of Association in its relation to the World and Society at large as a means of Universal Reform, and such an explanation of practical details as will make the pamphlet serve as a guide and text book for the establishment of small Associations, and the satisfaction of enquirers.

We have been deterred from making this pubication by various circumstances which have engrossed our time, and prevented its completion. much beyond the time contemplated when first announced. We hope, however, that our friends will find some compensation for the delay in the completeness of the work. The original design was to issue a pamphlet, which it was supposed would be furnished at three or four dollars per hundred; but subsequent consideration satisfied us of the propriety of getting it up in better style than that price would enable us to do; and we have therefore expended upon the typographical part of it much pains to make it neat and perfect It has been stereotyped at a heavy expense, will be printed on fine paper, and in every respect be equal in mechanical execution to our best Monthly Reviews. It will be furnished at wholesale at a price barely sufficient to cover the cost. Ten copics will be sent to persons enclosing One Dollar. (post paid,) to the Publishers, and if more are wanted, a liberal discount will be made. Retail price 121 cents. It will be sold by Burgess & Zeiber, Philadelphia; Redding & Co., Boston; Geo. Jones, Albany; and the News Agents gen-

A few numbers will be sent to each of our friends out of the City who have subscribed to the pamphlet and sent us the money, and the rest that may be due to them will be held subject to their order. The postage (30 cents) may make it objectionable to have them sent by mail; and private conveyance may be preferred.

This notice is intended especially for persons at a distance, as a farther notice will be given of the day of publication.

IF Female Beauty !- CULPABLE NEGLECT -It has been observed by visiters from all other countries, as well as by persons of the best cultivated laste in this, that in no country is there a larger share of female this, that in no country is there a larger share of female beauty and excellence than in this city. Yet, while the shoe fitter, dress-maker and milliner are engaged in adorning "nature's best gift to man," one part appears almost totally neglected—THE HAIR. How frequently do the ravages of disease lay waste the delicate form of the fair and beautiful, and though restored again to health, yet those flowing locks which once adorned their heads fall off and never again return to their original beauty. It is become never again return to their original beauty.
